

SeaSideMinimalism

SimpleSeaShapes

This image is comprised of two elements the horizon and the island that is shaped as such that it leads into the horizon this is to connote that a journey does not need to lead to something to be meaningful. This image uses the deep contrast between the dark island and the white water this makes the viewer feel like they are in a place unlike this earth that is fully peaceful and stress free and hence this stimulates the viewer to feel a sense of calmness.

LoneIslandFriendship

This is an image that needs a lot of negative space for the viewer to fully understand the potential story it shows 2 people alone on a island surrounded by nothing. This resembles a friendship that has been unaltered by the outside world and hence it shows that they are experiencing a peaceful time

PierSideView

This image uses a simple pier as a subject and removes all other aspects to create a beautiful and isolated image. When i saw this pier it reminded me of my times on the beach as a child and walking on every pier even though you don't have to this hence make the image have great meaning to me. I also decided to include some clouds in the image to add some other elements to the image other than the pier just because i thought it was a little too simplistic without it.

RuralRiverLiving

These houses by the sea i believe is a reminder that people live in many different ways it was taken at the edge of a fishing lake and when i look at the photo it reminds me to take it slow like people who fish do who live a very simple and peacefull life.

LovelyLittleLake

This image was taken due to the way that the trees surround the lake this shows the depth of the lake. This image is so bright and the reflections are so perfect that it transports the viewer in to a beautiful headspace that is almost heaven like this is an almost a dissociative feeling and separates the viewer from the world and hence relives stress which is a thing that i aim to do with the majority of my minimalistic images.

SmallBrightHaven

This image originally had more elements either side of the small island but i decided to take them out with the clone tool this helped create an image that I had been hoping to find since the start of minimalism this being a lone island in a body of water this creates a little island disconnected from ordinary life this hence makes us think what it is like on this island? Are there any animals on it? what would it be like living there away from the current hectic world?

DramaticLittleLighthouse

This and the next two images are fine art black and whites. This particular image uses the water that goes into the lake to lead up to the lighthouse the dramatic colours and deep contrast creates a moody image that conveys danger and hence the lighthouse being white being a beacon of hope.

OffWeSail

This is a simple yet effective image showing a boat in centre frame this hence focus on the boat and the stories that would of occurred on the boat in the middle of the sea and hence creating an interesting story for the image.

EnteringTheCastle

This place has a castle on the other side of this bridge which has since collapsed but this is a quite interesting photo which I decided to warp slightly to create more negative space and lead the viewers eyes from the corners and hence creating more space hence showing the isolation of the location.

IntoTheMountains

This is my favourite image and i believe my best work it uses this simplistic formulae that I created but expands it by having some mountains in the background and the boat that is launching off the island. This hence creates a story of how the boat gets from the island to the mountains and what happens on the way. The use of negative space shows the space around the boat and hence shows the possibilities that are available in terms of where the boat can go too.